

It's easy to want to play games in the house. But certain types of games, like running games, are best left for outside. It's just way too easy to slip and trip, and too many corners and ledges for you to hit your head on. Take a trip to any emergency room on any night of the week and you'll find kids who need stitches because they were running inside the house. Ouch. Even worse, many kids have died from it. So never run or rough-house indoors. I know it's hard... We were kids once too. But it sure beats a hospital visit!
