

Rebecca's lost at the mall. She stopped to look at some toys, and when she turned around, her mother was missing. Good thing she knows just what to do. If you ever get lost like this, always try to find someone who is working and ask them for help—someone like a store clerk, a police officer, security guard, lifeguard, and so forth. Even if the person you find happens to be bad, they can't hurt you while they're working, because someone else would know. If there aren't any workers around, find a mom or dad who has kids WITH THEM and ask for help.
