

You may be strong, but water is much stronger! It has the power to carry cars away, lift elephants, or break down bridges. If you end up where you really shouldn't be, water just might use its power to carry away you! So always be careful around rivers and streams, or any other place where water is moving. Stay in places your mom or dad have tested first to make sure the current isn't too strong. Even a few feet can make a big difference.
