

Pretend about this: What if a stranger came to you and said he's got a whole box of kittens, and asks you if you would like one? Well, would you like one? All you have to do is come to the back of my van to pick one out. So, will you come with me to pick one out? No! This is a stranger trick. I like puppies and kittens as much as the next person, but if someone really were giving away kittens, they would ask your mom or dad, not you. And they certainly wouldn't ask you to come along with them to pick one out. So if this ever happens, find your mom or dad or another grown-up right away!

