

Something dangerous is happening in this picture. Can you see what it is? Look, that kid is walking behind a car that is backing up! Cars have blind spots. That means they often cannot see children who are behind them. Which is why you should never go running up ahead of your parents through a parking lot. Always stay close, and look ahead for cars that are running, cars with their brake lights on, or cars with people in them. These could be signs that someone is getting ready to back out. Stay safe so that you don't get 'runned' over!