Every single year, 19,000 houses get burned down. All because children make a bad choice and play with fire. That's like an entire city gone in a flash. These kids burn up all their toys.

They burn up everything their family has. Sometimes they even burn themselves up -- all because they made a bad choice and played with fire. To get an idea of just how many houses that is, every 27 minutes, every hour day and night, somewhere in the U.S. a kids is playing with fire and burning down their house. Better yet, try to count to 19,000! I bet you'll get tired and say "that's just too many." We couldn't agree more . . . That's WAY too many.

So make sure you don't become one of the 19,000. Never, ever play with fire.
